MESSAGE FROM THE PRINCIPAL

On behalf of my companions in the Wah Yan community, I offer my warmest welcome to all who take an interest in Wah Yan College, Kowloon (WYK), a Jesuit boys' school established since 1924.

Illuminating the vision of St. Ignatius of Loyola, founder of the Society of Jesus, Jesuit education entails expansive learning experiences that transcend regular teach and preach. It calls for an active appropriation of knowledge and skills elicited from a cycle of experience, reflection, and action, with a view to nurturing intellectual, ethical, and discerning individuals. At WYK, it is our tradition to learn by experience, learn through reflection, and learn with and from companions.

As Ignatian educators, we care deeply for the mind as much as the heart and soul of each student. Not only do we aspire to sharpen the intellect, but also awaken the spirituality of students. We inspire and encourage students to open doors to diverse learning experiences, from which they take the initiative to learn to do better every day, and in every way – and serve the greater good as Men for and with Others. On their journey towards personal growth and self-exploration, we double our roles as their life companions as they travel through peaks and valleys in their lives.

As we transcend the century, I am confident that WYK will remain true to its founding principles and Jesuit values in nurturing more warm hearts and great minds for the betterment of our shared world – for the greater glory of God. I am honoured and humbled to invite you to come and discover the Jesuit learning experience that WYK has to offer.

THE QUINTESSENCE OF WYK

“O Lord Jesus, be with me all through today to help me to live as I ought to live.”

JESUIT EDUCATION AT WYK

About WYK

Wah Yan College was founded by Mr Peter TSUI Yan Sau at 60 Hollywood Road, Hong Kong in 1919. In 1924, the Kowloon Branch of Wah Yan College was established with an initial enrolment of 24 students and subsequently became one of the first Grant-in-Aid schools managed by Chinese.

In 1946, the management was handed over to the care of the Society of Jesus.

Fledgling from the Portland Street, Nelson Street and Austin Road campuses especially against the headwinds of the Japanese Occupation and post-war era, Wah Yan College, Kowloon never shies away from, but thrives well in challenges.

In 1952, when our new campus was officially opened by the then Governor, Sir Grantham, we have ever since stood tall and strong, and remained firm and poised at 56 Waterloo Road.

Throughout the century, our core values of nurturing men of competence, commitment, conscience, and compassion have not fallen out of step with the times.

Jesuit Education is not about some pedagogical dogma, but instead strives to bring out the unique God-given talents and innate goodness in each student by providing a variety of learning experiences, as well as space for reflection and assimilation. In this way, students are prepared not just for further studies but also for life.

About Jesuit Education

Human Excellence

Jesuit education, rooted in the rich tradition of the Society of Jesus, offers a holistic approach to nurturing students towards the four-Cs of Human Excellence: Competence, Commitment, Conscience, and Compassion. There are now over 900 Jesuit schools in over 70 countries, a testimony to its success.

Robust methodology

With deep insights on who the human person is and how he might be transformed, Jesuit education has a robust philosophy towards education and a well-developed approach on how it might be applied in practice, as epitomized in the Ignatian Pedagogical Paradigm (“IPP”). Regarding academic learning, IPP empowers teachers to select, adopt, or design teaching methods which are more effective in arousing students’ interests, helping them find meaning, underlying principles, and real-world application of the subject matters through ample opportunities for experience and reflection.

Educating for life

But Jesuit education is more than academic excellence as it aims to prepare students for life itself. Thus, Jesuit education is also characterized by the provision of a rich array of extra-curricular activities in which students often play a leading role in organizing them while teachers are advisors and companions. The rich experiences of both successes and setbacks as well as the human bonding formed in the process are invaluable, as testified by countless alumni.

More relevant than ever

In a world with rapid technological development when technical tasks will gradually be replaced by machines, Jesuit education’s focus on developing students’ inner human qualities, self-initiative for lifelong learning, as well as their orientation and skills for connection with fellow human beings – attributes that technology can never replace – have become more relevant than ever.

School Vision

We offer a holistic, liberating and transforming Catholic education within a learning community for students and staff to become progressively competent, committed, compassionate, spiritual, and ethically discerning persons with a universal heart contributing to the welfare and happiness of all, in particular, the poor and the neglected.

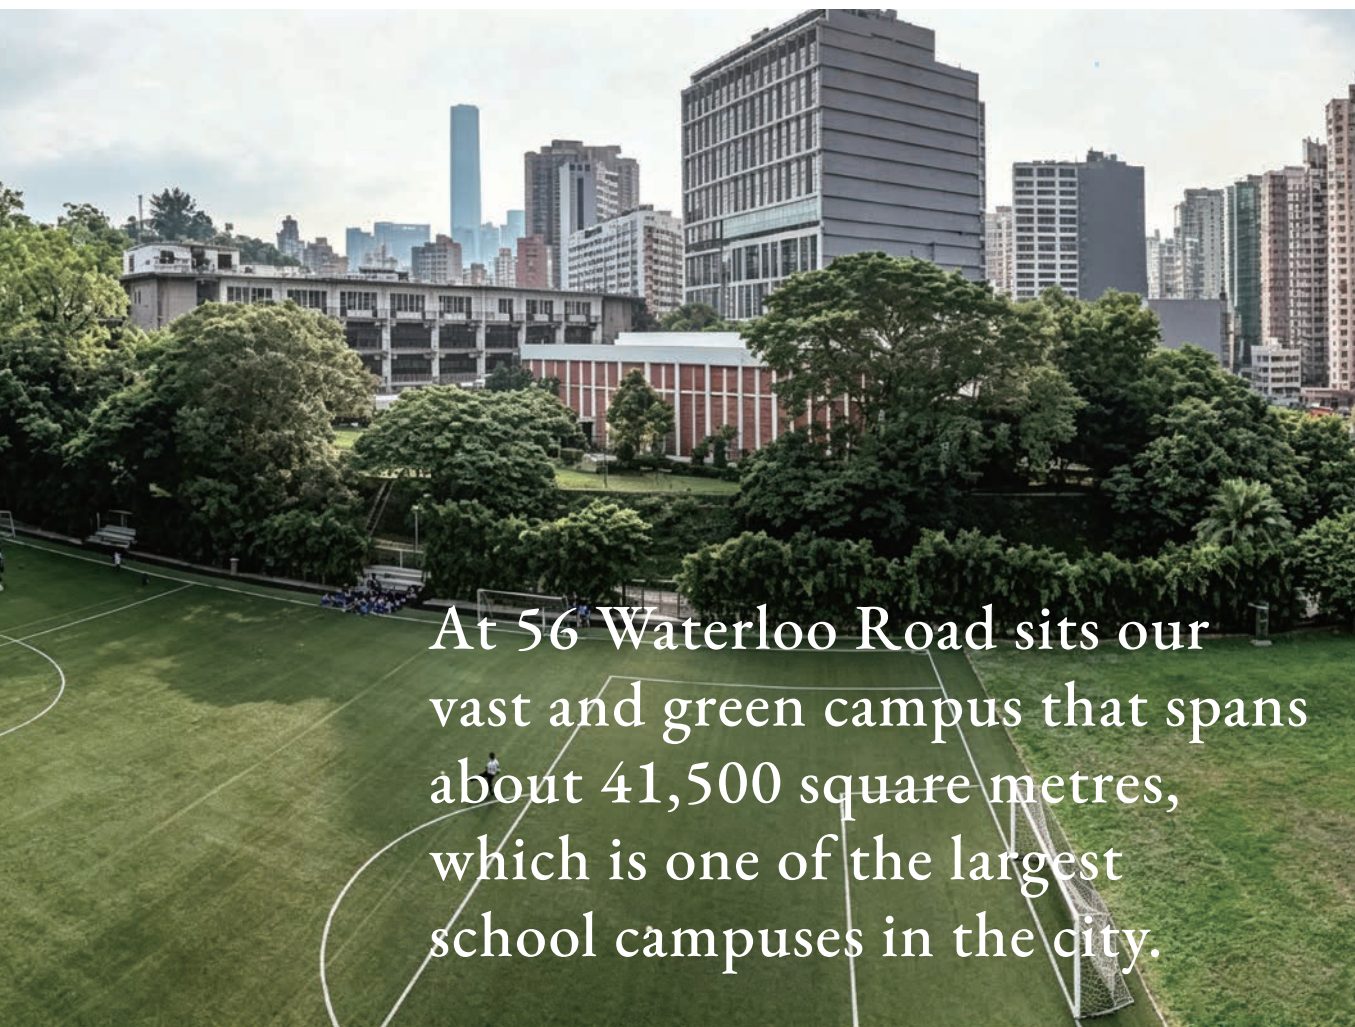

CAMPUS

Akin to a botanic garden at the heart of the city centre with hundreds of trees and a variety of colourful and fragrant shrubs, our verdant campus has a natural affinity with our Jesuit fathers from Ireland in the early days, and has all along been an idyllic place for intellectual and spiritual growth, flourishing together with generations of Wahyanites.

In the comforting breeze that wafts the refreshing scent of the lawns in the main building area stands – in serenity – our historic and beloved St. Ignatius Chapel. Rising steep from the ceremonial stairs at the Main Entrance, the Chapel is a modern feat of architectural ingenuity, an integral part of the campus, as well as a spiritual home for all.

Conducive to whole-person development, our campus houses a wide range of facilities way beyond regular standards, allowing space for our diverse talents to grow and shine, and thrive intellectually, culturally and aesthetically as Renaissance Men who stand out from the common run of men.

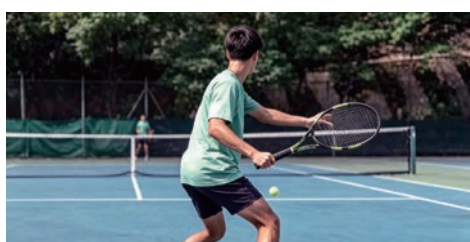

At 56 Waterloo Road sits our vast and green campus that spans about 41,500 square metres, which is one of the largest school campuses in the city.

Facilities include:

- Two Football Pitches (Astro-turf & Concrete)
- Two Basketball Courts
- Four Tennis Courts
- Swimming Pool
- Fitness Training Room
- Five Science Laboratories (including a STEM Lab & an AI Lab)
- Music Centre
- Language Centre
- Biotech Hub

EXPANSIVE NETWORK

Wahyanesque Fraternity

As Men of Human Excellence and Men for and with Others, Wahyanites grow and learn in class, sweat and toil in competitions, create and innovate for the betterment of mankind, serve the greater good and not to count the cost – a strong sense of brotherhood is cultivated at a tender age of 11 or 12.

Years and even decades after graduation, they are as closely-knitted as ever in the name of Wah Yan – whether they are excelling as leaders-in-service in their areas of expertise locally, or venturing overseas to serve as conscientious global citizens, the sense of kinship that Wahyanites share always transcend spatial and temporal limits.

From Europe to the United States, Canada to the Asia Pacific, a robust international network is established abroad, in addition to the professional fraternities (medical, legal, finance, real estate, and education) that are based mainly at home.

The expansive and prospering networks do not only testify the lifelong brotherhood among the old boys, but also provide invaluable support to current students, as in the forms of lining up mentorship and workplace attachment programmes, supporting overseas experiential learning, or even offering insights into application for renowned universities around the world.

WYKPSA & WYOFF

The Past Students' Association and Wah Yan One Family Foundation have, for decades, remained staunch supporters of the above initiatives.

ABOUT

What sets Jesuit Education apart is the quintessential cura personalis that we offer.

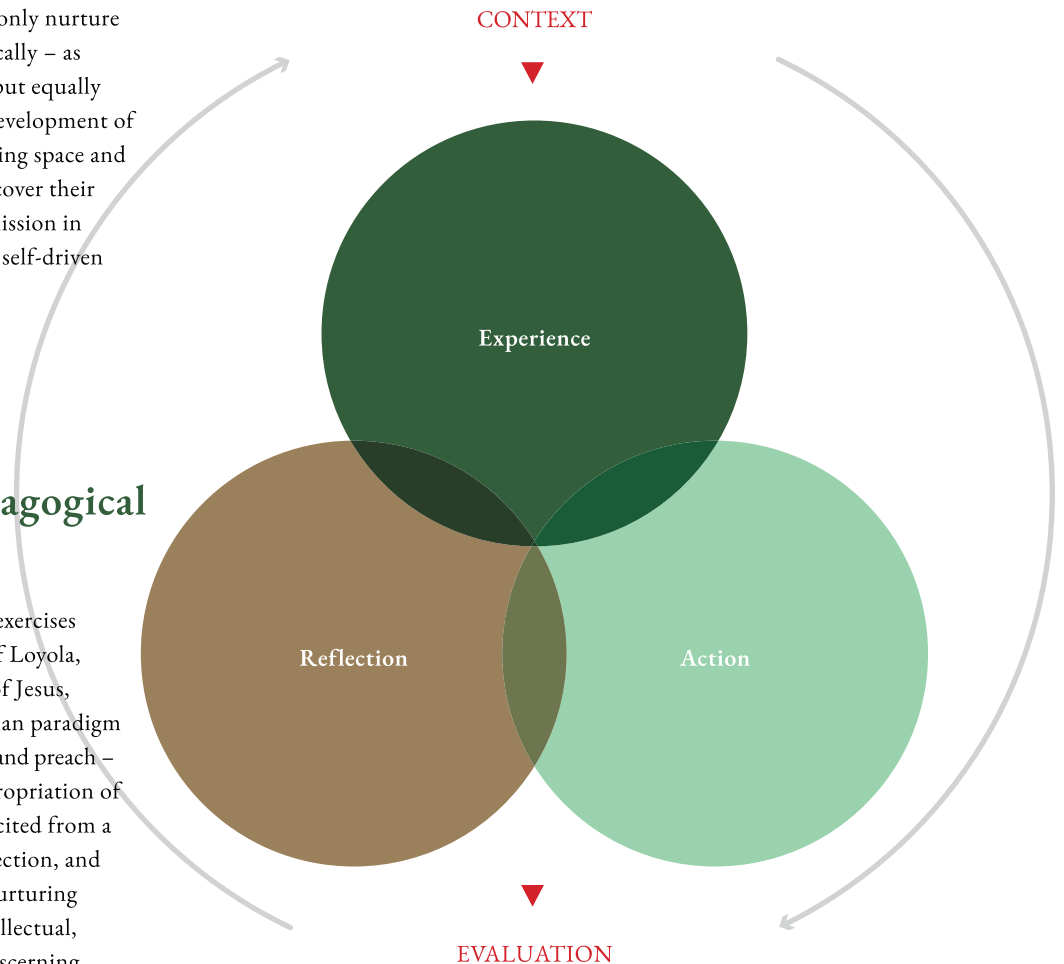

LEARNING & TEACHING

At Wah Yan, we do not only nurture men who excel academically – as Ignatian educators, we put equally great emphasis on the development of the whole person, allowing space and time for students to discover their true self, passion, and mission in life so that they become self-driven learners and leaders.

Ignatian Pedagogical Paradigm

Rooted in the spiritual exercises devised by St Ignatius of Loyola, founder of the Society of Jesus, 500 years ago, the Ignatian paradigm transcends regular teach and preach – it calls for an active appropriation of knowledge and skills elicited from a cycle of experience, reflection, and action, with a view to nurturing individuals who are intellectual, practical, ethical, and discerning.

The Examen

“We do not learn from experience; we learn from reflecting on experience.” – John DEWEY

On every school day after the lunch break, all Wahyanites practice the Examen in the company of our Ignatian educators. In this 10-minute silence and calmness, students are invited to reflect on their different experiences, be it good or bad – in serenity – and get in touch with their inner self and God.

Especially in this fast-paced digital era with the overwhelming flood of information that our senses are exposed to, learning to stand back, and revisit our experiences with gratitude, humility, and hope can do wonders. With this habit of reflection, students learn to unpack the gifts implicit in all experiences, become more aware of their true self, and acquire greater capacity for discernment and making wise decisions. All these pave the way for lifelong growth and transcendence – in school, and in life.

Cura Personalis

We care for the heart and soul as much as the mind and the body. We value the uniqueness of each student – believing that everyone is willed, loved, and regarded by God as necessary. On their journeys toward self-exploration and personal development, we double our roles as life companions who keep them company no matter whether they are hitting peaks or valleys in their lives.

Cura Personalis, care for the whole person, is our calling as Ignatian educators at Wah Yan.

Curriculum Highlights

Grounded in the Liberal Arts tradition, Jesuit Education entails expansive learning experiences – inside and outside classrooms. We offer a broad and balanced curriculum which encourages cross-curricular learning from S1 through S6 using English as a medium of instruction.

The Intellect

- nurturing self-directed learning capabilities and competencies in critical thinking, communication, creativity, STEAM skills, and language arts

The Aesthetics

- through music and visual arts education

Physical Fitness

- boosting stamina, endurance and self-discipline; students are expected to take up at least one sport

Values Education & Spiritual Formation

- through Examen and reflection, understanding self and others, nurturing empathy

Gifted Education for All

- we do not selectively nurture gifted students, but the gift of all students

School Life

A Wahyanesque school life is characterised by its vibrancy, diversity and the close-knit fraternity that promises to be an absolute treasure that Wahyanites hold dear to their hearts for life.

Whether you are a budding artist, athlete, linguist, scholar, leader, or just a candid young gentleman with a warm heart, you always have an opportunity to rise and shine at WYK.

Vision-in-Action

Vision-in-Action (VIA), a school-based curriculum specially designed for senior students (S4 to S5), consists of five key components, namely, Art and Music, Drama, Design Thinking, Entrepreneurship, and Social Service.

Accentuating learning across curriculum, we prepare students to be innovative, collaborative and communicative. Students are expected to bring real-world relevance into their learning, and foster positive changes in the community – and the world at large. Maturing into fine young gentlemen, they have the creativity to envision new possibilities, the knowledge to bring intelligence to life, the courage to navigate unforeseen challenges – and thrive as men of human excellence in the 21st century.

House System

Named after key figures of the Society of Jesus, namely, Faber, Loyola, Ricci, and Xavier, the Houses embody the spirit of our devout and insightful pioneers who humbly committed their lives to charity, discipline, courage and loyalty.

The House Captains take the lead to motivate members to strive for excellence in all competitions and activities, with a view to cultivating brotherhood among members across all forms.

SCHOLARSHIPS & FINANCIAL AID

WYK is an Aided School fully funded by the Government, students do not have to pay any standard school fees. In addition, scholarships and financial aid are readily available for our fine young gentlemen in pursuit of their dreams and aspirations at different stages of their learning journey – at Wah Yan and beyond.

In particular, as a Jesuit School, we serve the faith that does justice and believe that no students should be deprived of quality education due to financial hardship. We embrace students from all walks of life.

Apart from current students, prospective and graduating students displaying potential and great flair in specific areas, such as academic, music, sports, service, etc will also be merited.

As Ignatian educators who care deeply for the whole-person development of our young gentlemen especially during their formative years, we aim to get them well-covered.

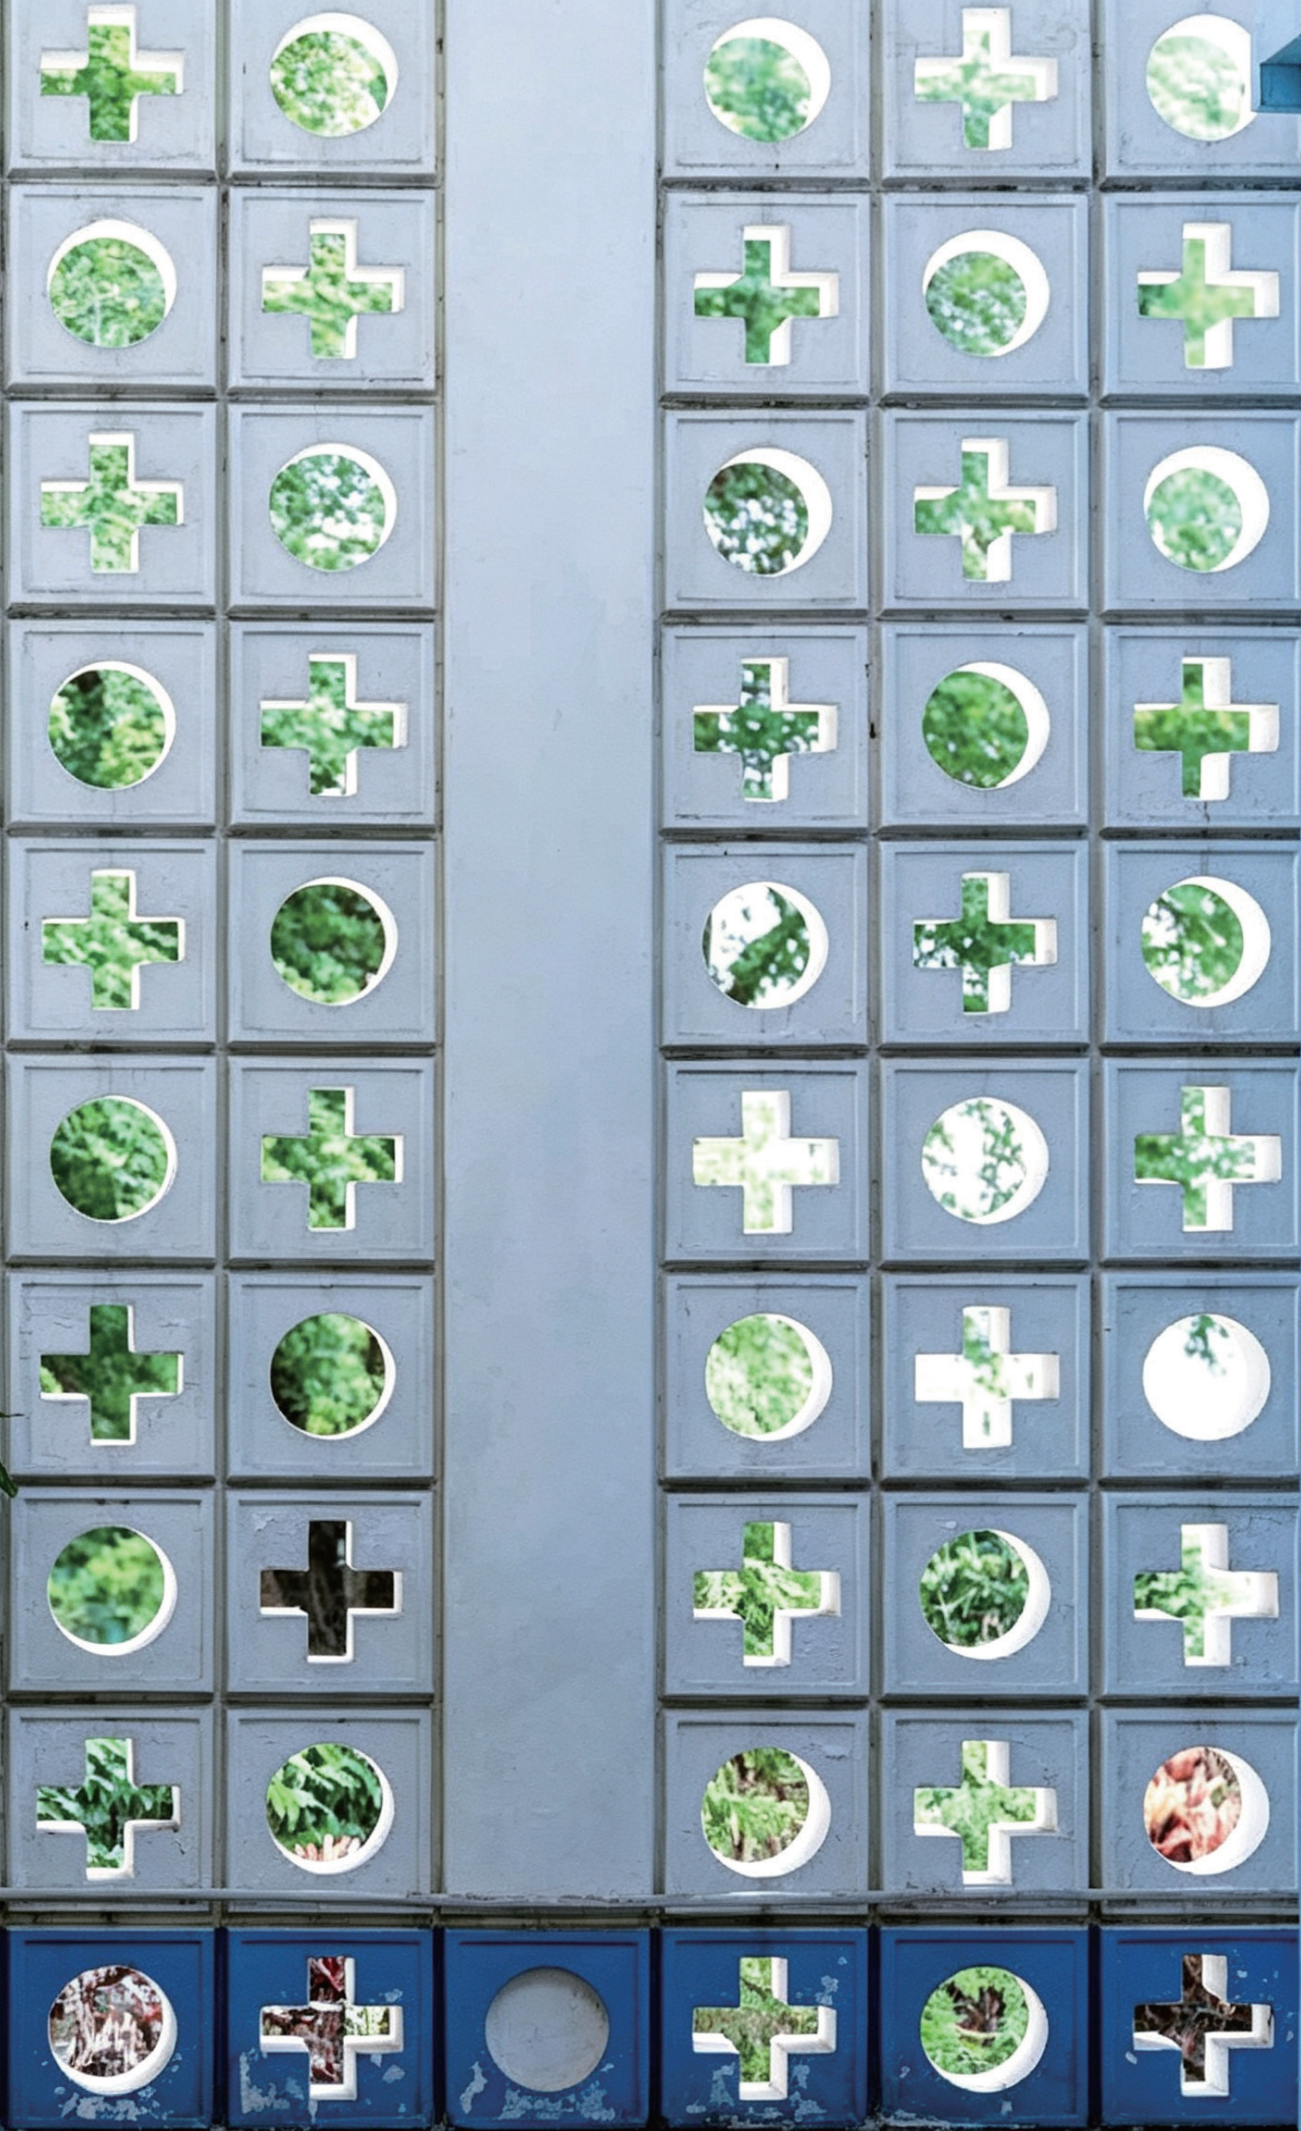

MAGIS

MEN FOR & IN THE 21ST CENTURY

We take pride in the names of Wah Yan and Jesuit education, not out of romanticism, but as an inspiration for the future.

THE RENAISSANCE MAN

Self-Directed Learning

Drawing on the Ignatian Pedagogical Paradigm, we empower and engage our students in self-directed learning. Students are expected to set SMART learning goals, learn time management, master skills such as note-taking, concept mapping and collaborative learning, and aspire to be lifelong self-directed and reflective learners.

Cross-Curricular Education

To facilitate deeper learning that goes beyond the mastery of concepts prescribed in a specific curriculum, we encourage cross-curricular learning and reading – fusing hard knowledge across disciplines with soft skills like critical thinking, design thinking, problem solving and communication etc. Education in the 21st century transcends textbook memorisation; it is more about personalisation of learning experiences that broadens students' development on different levels: the intellectual, physical, aesthetic, moral and social.

STEAM & Language Proficiencies

The digital age necessitates STEAM skills; yet, it cannot sit apart from language arts as they are integral to each other in terms of communication and creativity. In junior forms, all students learn to code and to write, laying a solid foundation and becoming progressively competent in STEAM, design thinking, and communication skills in senior forms.

Character Formation & Pastoral Care

We stress character formation and introduce the Examen, a form of spiritual exercise, on every school day. Students develop the habit of learning through reflection, and the ability to empathise and discern, becoming compassionate global citizens.

Our psychologists, social workers, as well as our Jesuit fathers and Ignatian educators are all dedicated to building a caring and safe learning environment that brims with love – a home away from home that they can always rely on.

As Men of Human Excellence, serving the world with competence,
commitment, compassion,
and conscience

FROM BOYS TO MEN

Flying high at home and abroad
Opening up a world of opportunities

Overseas Opportunities

Catering for our diverse talent, Wahyanites are encouraged to explore their interests and stretch their potential on an international level. From flight training in Australia, service learning in Cambodia, to music masterclasses in Hungary, we are always there to accompanying them.

Service Learning

We care for and walk with others, especially the poor and the neglected. Students engage in service-learning in both the local and global contexts. Locally, students are expected to dedicate at least 10 hours each year to serving the community. Service-learning programmes include volunteering in rural areas in China, and MAGIS trip to Cambodia.

FOR THE WORLD

WAH YAN COLLEGE, KOWLOON

Music

Our young music makers shine bright locally, and often take the international stages sparkling with vigor. From Tokyo and Beijing to Budapest and Slovenia, Wahyanites were crowned “Choir of the World” in a competition hosted in Canada. We are dedicated to spreading love through music.

Sports

Sports facilities are ample on campus, which are conducive to training physical fitness and stamina. We cater to a wide spectrum of interests, varying from tennis and football, to water polo and ice hockey. Wahyanites are active participants of the Inter-School Competitions (Division I) – and our Ice Hockey team was crowned Champion for eight consecutive years.
